Descripción de la propiedad

Just an hour and a half from Panama City, and near attractive developments such as Coronad, Punta Barco, and Buenaventura, among others, you'll find an irregularly shaped plot of land with mostly flat topography and easily mechanized slopes. The open areas are covered with natural grass and trees typical of the region, while the rear portion has low-lying undergrowth. The property is partially enclosed with cyclone fencing on steel tubes and/or barbed wire on wooden posts, while the front is enclosed with plastered cement blocks and iron gates for pedestrian and vehicular access. According to the Public Registry, the property has a registered area of 2,640.00 m² and includes a single-family home built in 1947.
